Creating a Virtual Student Orientation Course FOR ONLINE SUCCESS!

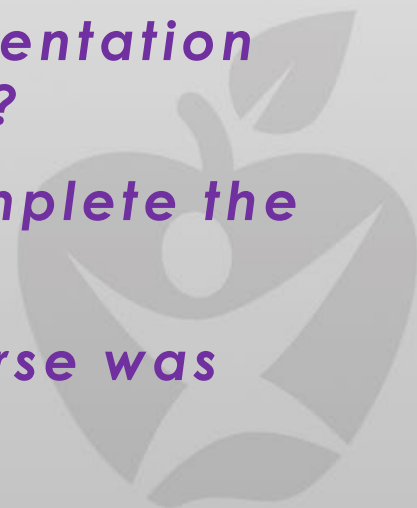

Let's get started!

Guiding Questions

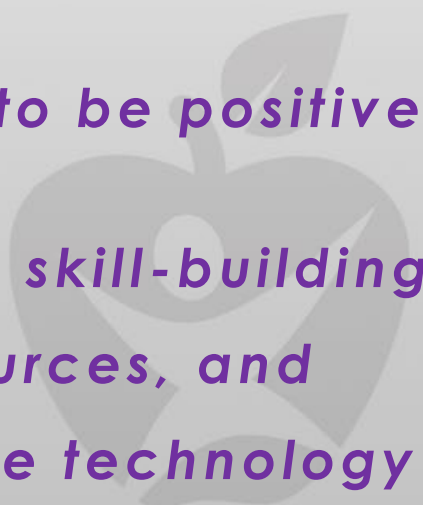

As adult educators, most of us are new to delivering online instruction. Together, we share similar questions when we consider what should be included in a virtual student orientation course:

- How can we orient students to online learning?*
- What should be included in a virtual orientation course, and how should it be delivered?*
- How can we encourage students to complete the experience?*
- How will we know if the orientation course was successful?*

Training Objectives:

We will explore a 4-part process for developing a Virtual Student Orientation Course to prepare students for success in their virtual classes.

- Boost students' confidence for online success*
 - Foster a sense of community among students and faculty*
 - Equip students with the essential tools to be positive online community members*
 - Facilitate academic preparedness and skill-building*
 - Provide support and engagement resources, and*
 - Give students the opportunity to use the technology they will encounter in their online courses*

- Limited access to content
- Insufficient individualized attention
- Quality depends on instructor

Definition

Examples

Pros

Cons

- Can be completed via online courses, email, blogs, pre-recorded videos or webinars, online discussion boards
- Learners complete courses in their own time, regardless of location

- Online courses
- Email
- Blogs
- Pre-recorded video lessons or webinars
- Online forums and discussion boards.

- Learners pace themselves
- Cost-effective: no travel, venue, or instructor costs
- Can train many more learners at once

CONCLUSION & REFLECTION

Time to Reflect

Growth Mindset: Taking It One Step Further

Change how you look at virtual instruction. Look beyond the constraints of a physical classroom. Be sure to set up a Virtual Student Orientation Course that mirrors your online courses.

Redesign your virtual intake/registration process to include a VSO Course that will familiarize students with the online tools they will need for successful completion of their online courses. Make sure that you provide plenty of opportunities for students to practice navigating through different platforms, downloading and uploading assignments, taking quizzes, participating in breakout room activities and conversation posts, and engaging in meaningful virtual activities that support an active learning community online.

Review all of the identified data parameters for your VSO Course. Share this information with teachers, administrators and district personnel and become an expert on what works and doesn't work in your virtual classes. Have round-table discussions with your administrative team and share the placement, instructional, and promotional options for online classes provided in this training.

Reflect and Make a Change. Finally, ask yourself, "What is working especially well in my virtual classroom, and what is not?" Hold virtual data chats with your students regularly and be sure to continuously re-evaluate the effectiveness of your VSO Course. Share your students' success with other teachers so that they too can contribute to the continued improvement of this course and be proactive in implementing changes to constantly improve its quality as well as the level of online success experienced by your students.

“The best professional development is ongoing, experiential, collaborative, and connected to and derived from working with students.”
